Things to do at the hospital

Paying your last respects
If you wish to, you can pay your last respects to the person who has died at the hospital. The ward staff or a member of the bereavement care department can arrange this for you; otherwise we recommend you contact your funeral director who will be pleased to offer this service at the funeral home.

Tissue donation
Every year many hundreds of lives are dramatically improved through the use of tissues donated after someone dies. Tissue donation is entirely voluntary and is dependent on the generosity of patients’ families. There are some conditions that prevent donations taking place and donations must take place within 48 hours of the person dying (24 hours for eye tissues). However, if you think that the person who has died carried a Donor Card, or expressed a wish to donate tissue, please contact the bereavement care department on 023 8120 4587 who will discuss this further with you. If the death occurred outside normal working hours, you can contact the NHS Blood and Transplant Service (NHSBT) direct on 0800 432 0559. Tissue donation will not delay any funeral arrangements and, because great care is taken to restore the patient’s natural appearance, it will still be possible to arrange a viewing after the donation has taken place.

Collecting the notification of death
In most cases a hospital doctor who has been treating the patient will issue a Medical Certificate of Cause of Death, which you will need in order to register the death at the Register Office (see page 8). Before this certificate can be written, the doctor will need to discuss the death with a senior hospital consultant at our Internal Medical Examiner meeting. This meeting enables us to identify any areas of care that might need to be reviewed and to ensure that the certificate accurately reflects the cause of death. These meetings have proven to be very beneficial and generally have not impacted on the speed with which certificates are written.

Please telephone the bereavement care department on 023 8120 4587 who will discuss the certification process with you and when the certificate is likely to be written. Once the certificate has been issued they will call you to make an appointment for you to collect it.

The doctor cannot issue the Medical Certificate of Cause of Death where the Coroner needs to investigate a death further (see page 7). In these cases, the bereavement care team will advise you of the process to be followed and what to do next.

Collecting clothes and valuables
You can collect non-valuation property, such as clothing and toiletries from the bereavement care office when you collect the Medical Certificate of Cause of Death. If you are collecting valuables, you will need to show that you are entitled to receive them. This will normally be the surviving spouse, an executor named on the will, or the person obtaining Letters of Administration if there is no will. Valuables are kept in the cashiers’ office which is open from 9am to 4pm, Monday to Friday.

Directions to the bereavement care department (Victoria House)
Come onto the hospital grounds via the Emergency Department entrance in Tremona Road. Bear left after Ronald McDonald House and in front of the Eye Unit. Take a ticket and come through the ticket barrier. Follow the road round to the right, past car park 8 and park in the bereavement care bays. We will give you a free exit ticket when you leave.
Practical arrangements

Arranging the funeral
It is important to contact the funeral director of your choice as soon as possible so that they can start making arrangements on your behalf. You need not wait until the death certificate has been issued.

Most funeral directors are available seven days a week and are usually happy to visit you at home to help and advise you. Prices for funerals vary and you may wish to contact several funeral directors and compare prices before you make a decision. Alternatively, you may want to carry out the funeral without the assistance of a funeral director. If you would like some advice on how to proceed, please discuss this with a member of the hospital's bereavement care team.

If you are in receipt of certain benefits you may be entitled to help with the cost of the funeral. You can apply using form SF200 (Funeral payment from the Social Fund) which is available from the bereavement care office, the Register Office and most funeral directors. Please check the details carefully so that you understand which costs the Department of Work and Pensions (DWP) will cover.

If you are under State Pension age and are widowed or your civil partner dies, you may be entitled to a Bereavement Support Payment. You can find out more at www.gov.uk/bereavement-support-payment. Alternatively, you may wish to contact the DWP Bereavement Service on 0345 606 0265 for advice.

The Coroner and post mortems
Some deaths are reported by hospital doctors to the Coroner, if:

- The cause of death is uncertain
- Death was sudden or violent or caused by an accident
- Death might be due to an industrial injury or disease
- Death occurred while the patient was undergoing an operation or was under the effect of an anaesthetic, or within 24 hours of hospital admission.

The Coroner will then decide whether or not a post mortem examination is needed. The Coroner has a legal right to request a post mortem even if this is contrary to the family’s wishes. He will make any necessary arrangements, and give the Register Office the relevant forms so that you can register the death (see page 8).

You will not receive a Medical Certificate of Cause of Death from the hospital when a Coroner’s post mortem examination is carried out. If there is a post mortem, the results go only to the Coroner in the first instance, but can be obtained later by the general practitioner (GP) of the person who has died. Please tell your funeral director if the death is reported to the Coroner. He or she will liaise with the Coroner on your behalf and let you know when you can register the death at the Register Office.

Hospital post mortems
The doctor who certified the death may ask for permission to carry out a post mortem examination to help advance medical knowledge and teaching. The bereavement care team will be able to support you in making the decision that is right for you. It is entirely up to you whether or not to grant permission. If you do, the examination should not delay the funeral arrangements.

You will still receive a Medical Certificate of Cause of Death from the hospital.
Registering the death
The death needs to be formally registered with the Registrar of Births, Deaths and Marriages.

The Register Office is in Bugle Street, Southampton (see map on page 10). There is a small car park and the office is open Monday, Wednesday and Thursday 9am to 4.30pm, Tuesday 10am to 4.30pm and Friday 9am to 4pm. You will need to either telephone the Register Office on 023 8091 5327 to make an appointment, or use their online booking system at: www.southampton.gov.uk/register-a-death

Registering by declaration
If it is not possible for you to register the death in Southampton, you may be able to register by declaration in your home town. The local Registrar will not be able to register the death or issue you with any certificates, but will take the necessary information and forward it to the Register Office in Southampton. The Southampton Registrar will then register the death and issue the relevant certificates. These will be posted to you, which may therefore cause delays in organising the funeral.

Tell Us Once service
Once you have registered the death you can use the Tell Us Once service to inform a range of Government and council departments that the person has died. This can be done on-line or by telephoning 0800 085 7308. To make sure that the right information is given, it will help if you can take with you their National Insurance Number, details of any benefits or services they were receiving, their driving licence and passport.

At the Registrar’s Office
Please take the Medical Certificate of Cause of Death with you, if you have one. If possible you should also take other supporting documents such as the person’s birth and marriage certificates, proof of address and NHS medical card.

The Registrar will ask you the following questions (use the space to write down the information at home before you go to the Register Office):

The date and place of death

Full name and surname/family name

Maiden surname/family name (if applicable)

Date of birth of the person who has died

The town and county of birth

Address (including postcode) of the person who has died

The last full time occupation of the person who has died

(and if applicable, the name and occupation of the deceased’s spouse or civil partner)

If the person who has died was married or in a civil partnership, the date of birth of the surviving spouse or civil partner
Help and support

How you might feel
The death of someone close can be a devastating experience and can bring about stronger emotions than most people expect. Each bereavement is unique, and our grieving, our reactions and our needs are also unique. Even if you have known that someone was dying, there may still be a sense of shock when the death occurs. Initially you may feel numb, empty, unreal or full of pain. Later on these may change to feelings of anger, panic, guilt, sadness, or even relief. These are natural reactions to bereavement and are not a sign that you can no longer cope.

Help and support
Relatives or close friends often want to help and share the burden, but they too may find this a difficult time and may be afraid to speak about the person who has died for fear of upsetting you. It may be necessary for you to take the first step, and let them know that you want to talk, and that it does not make things worse. Sometimes people find it easier to talk to someone they do not know, but who has an understanding of bereavement. The hospital’s bereavement care team is here to listen and can also put you in touch with other agencies who might be able to help either now, or in the future. You might also wish to seek the support of a minister or priest, regardless of your religious beliefs. The hospital chaplains will be happy to offer their support and/or put you in touch with a minister of your own denomination or faith. It is important that you allow yourself time to grieve.

How children react
It may be tempting to exclude children from conversations about the person who has died and the funeral arrangements. Children are no different to adults when it comes to bereavement. There is no right way to react and every child will respond differently. Grieving children need honest and appropriate explanations, in language that they can understand, which acknowledges their loss. It is important to remember that children may not have the words to express their feelings and may show how they feel through their behaviour.

Settling the estate
Settling someone’s estate can be confusing, time consuming and upsetting. If you are the executor of the will it is your responsibility to see that the person’s wishes, as you understand them, are carried out. This will include paying funeral expenses, debts and taxes as well as dealing with their possessions and other assets. You can choose to do this yourself by contacting the local Probate Office (details in the telephone directory) to obtain the relevant forms and guidance, or you can use a solicitor to sort things out for you. Their fees for these services will come out of the estate; they usually charge by the hour so make clear precisely what they are required to do.
We understand that losing a loved one is a very difficult time, but making a positive difference to celebrate someone’s life can be a real comfort.

By making a donation to Southampton Hospital Charity you will be ensuring that patients at Southampton General and the Princess Anne Hospitals, and their families, are receiving the very best care in the best possible environment, for many years to come.

You might like to request donations at a loved one’s funeral, as an alternative to flowers. Please speak to a family member or the funeral director to let them know you would like to support Southampton Hospital Charity and specify if you would like your gift to benefit a particular ward or department, so we can ensure we fulfill your wishes.

You can also make a Gift in Memory today by calling us on 023 8120 8881, donating through www.memorygiving.com page or by post to:

Feedback

We appreciate that this may be a very difficult time for you, but we would find it helpful if you could now, or in the future, complete the end of life care questionnaire which can be found on the Trust's website. Follow the Friends and Family Test link on the home page and select the End of Life Care survey. Completing this survey will help us to evaluate and improve our services for patients at the end of life and their families. Thank you.
