Conversations about living with cystic fibrosis (CF)

Living with cystic fibrosis (CF) can raise many questions and concerns. This is because the condition affects multiple aspects of a person's life. We are happy to discuss any topics relating to CF with you and have listed some suggestions below which you may find helpful as a starting point. We have also included a blank bubble so you can add anything else you would find helpful to talk about.

My health

I would like to discuss:

- my level of confidence or self-esteem
- changes in my health
- managing pain
- my body image
- managing anxiety and stress
- bladder and bowel issues
- managing difficult symptoms
- death and dying
- information I have seen online

Support

I would like some advice about:

- financial support and grants
- emotional support
- transport to and from appointments

Lifestyle changes

I want to discuss how my condition may affect:

- eating and drinking
- sex and relationships
- sleep
- my family
- travelling and going on holiday

Treatment

I would like to know more about:

- specific medical information
- coping with hospital admissions
- breathing machines and NIV
- certain procedures
- managing my treatment
- feeding tubes
- transplant
- oxygen

My future

I would like support with making important decisions. For example:

- having children
- setting myself goals
- thinking about my hopes and dreams
- planning for the future
- choosing the care that is right for me, including end-of-life care (palliative care)
